How To Plan and Execute Great Startup Marketing Programs

The success of your business depends on your ability to attract customers. How do you ensure your marketing is the best it can be? This session is aimed at entrepreneurs who want to create more effective marketing programs to grow their business. It describes how to build a marketing plan that takes into account your prospects, their buying process and the market space you play in. It offers examples of how to execute, measure and improve those programs to maximize revenue and profit.

Startup Marketing 101

In this full-day workshop, April Dunford will take you through templates and a process for building a great marketing plan for your business. Topics covered include developing a marketing plan, value proposition and messaging, how to assess who your best target customers are, and measuring the results of your marketing activities. If you're an entrepreneur or marketer looking to acquire customers and drive sales for your startup, you won't want to miss it!

Startup Marketing: A Systems Approach

This talk describes my own experience in finding a repeatable process for building a marketing plan for a growing startup along with how to execute, test, measure and analyze marketing results. Random Acts of Marketing are Killing Your Startup

Marketing is a big term that covers lead generation, media relations, content marketing, social media, messaging, sales support and a huge heap of other things. Most startups have a puny budget and few (if any) dedicated marketing folks to get this stuff done. In this presentation, April will talk about the common pitfalls of disorganized startup marketing execution and outline a lightweight template for creating a marketing plan that makes that most of your limited marketing resources.

Advisor â€™ Engagio

Engagio is a Gmail-like productivity tool to manage your conversations in social networks and commenting systems. Engagio gives you visibility about the people behind these conversations and reveals their social identities profile, saving you time and allowing you to connect with them. Engagio derives implicit data from your normal interactions, whether these interactions occur on these networks or inside your Engagio Inbox. Connect your social networks & commenting systems and watch the magic!

Advisor â€™ Guardly

Guardly is a platform for emergency communication that changes the way mobile personal safety is delivered. Smartphone users that find themselves in an emergency situation can alert, connect and collaborate with local authorities as well as their own personal safety networks in a single tap. Guardly is committed to dramatically decreasing the amount of time it takes responders to arrive at an emergency. The company is a member of the National Emergency Number Association.
