

Arin Brahma

Clinical Assistant Professor of Finance + CIS, College of Business Administration at Loyola Marymount University

Los Angeles, CA, US

Biography

Arin has over 20 years of executive management, client management, solution delivery, consulting, teaching, and technology experience in the field of IT enabled Services, Systems Integration and Software Development. As a passionate educator and entrepreneur, Arin is actively engaged in mentoring early stage start-up companies. Currently, in addition to running his own eCommerce venture Rebelle, he is a partner and an executive at Greendale Partners. In his previous job, Arin was Executive Vice President at Oracle's Financial Services BPO division and headed the Global Business Transformation practice. As one of the founding partners of i-flex BPO (later became Oracle's BPO unit), Arin worked in various strategic roles in growing the company from a start-up to a leading BFSI BPO company by shaping the company's business plan, solution strategy, and customer portfolio.

Arin has worked for large corporations, successful mid-size companies, as well as entrepreneur ventures. Prior to Oracle BPO, Arin held various senior management, consulting, and technology management positions at Nexgenix, Union Carbide, Digital Equipment Corporation (DEC), Baan, and Asian Paints. During this period Arin consulted and delivered IT solutions for several Fortune 500 and large global corporations.

Arin's technology experience and knowledge is in the areas of database technologies, analytics and big data platforms and architecture, eCommerce technologies and various programming environments. Arin is currently pursuing his PhD with specialization in Data Science and Analytics at Claremont Graduate University, CA.
