Daly City, CA, US

Trying to make sense of it all? Fair Observer's Editor-in-Chief can provide your audience with insights on issues of global significance

Atul Singh is the Founder and Editor-in-Chief of Fair Observer, a media platform providing quality analysis of current issues to enable its readers to make sense of the world. Fair Observer practices intelligent crowd-sourcing, using its network of expert contributors from different disciplines, philosophies, and geographies to assemble a unique 360° view on topics of global importance

Atul is passionate about changing the media landscape, founding Fair Observer as an alternative to the ethnocentric, outside-in perspectives common to mainstream media. So far, Fair Observer has more than 300 contributors originating from over 30 countries and eminent advisers from across the world such as John Bruton, the former Irish Prime Minister, and Olivier Fleurot, the former CEO of the Financial Times Group. Content is curated daily at FairObserver.com and is syndicated to media outlets in several countries across 3 continents.

Prior to founding Fair Observer, Atul worked as a corporate lawyer in the UK and served as an elite Indian Police Service (IPS) officer, engaged in special operations in border areas of Kashmir and Nagaland. He holds an MBA from the Wharton School of Business and read Philosophy, Politics and Economics at Oxford, where he received the Radhakrishnan Scholarship, a prestigious scholarship offered by the Rhodes Trust to students from India.

Indian Media: Global, Representative, Autonomous?

Atul will discuss shifts in Indian media and whether Indian media and the quality of the content generated is relevant locally and globally. He will also address queries around the sanctity of the information provided by media and how much of a credible institution it remains in Indian polity. Lastly, Atul will answer questions around how easy/tough it is to start and successfully sustain a media based company in India.

Founder & Editor-in-Chief – Fair Observer

Fair Observer seeks to bring clarity to the complex and dynamic world we live in. Our aim is to provide a platform for voices from different disciplines, various philosophies and many parts of the world. In sum, our goal is to give you a 360° view of the world, with a plurality of perspectives, with diversity and debate, and with the story behind the story. Fair Observer seeks to generate a new global discourse that is valuably inclusive, insightful and inspiring.
