

Brett Marroquín

Assistant Professor of Psychology at Loyola Marymount University

Los Angeles, CA, US

Bellarmino College of Liberal Arts

Biography

Dr. Marroquín is a clinical psychologist and joined the faculty of LMU in 2016. His research examines interpersonal influences on emotion, emotion regulation, and cognitive processing in healthy functioning and mood disorders, particularly within the context of intimate relationships. His current work focuses on the role of relationships in emotional adjustment to major negative events, including cancer diagnosis and treatment, and how effective or ineffective support between partners affects couples' physical and mental health. At LMU, he teaches courses in abnormal psychology, emotion, and statistical methods for psychology.

Dr. Marroquín received his B.A. from New York University in 2002, his M.A. from Hunter College, City University of New York in 2008, and his Ph.D. from Yale University in 2014. He completed his predoctoral clinical internship at Northwestern Memorial Hospital in Chicago, IL, specializing in treatment of severe mental illness and community mental health, and a National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) postdoctoral fellowship in biobehavioral issues in physical and mental health at UCLA.

Areas of Expertise

Clinical Psychology, Psychopathology, Emotion and Emotion Regulation, Intimate Relationships, Mood Disorders, Social Influences on Health, Suicide

Affiliations

Association for Behavioral and Cognitive Therapies (ABCT), Association for Psychological Science (APS), Society for Personality and Social Psychology (SPSP)

Education

Yale University

Ph.D. Clinical Psychology

Hunter College, City University of New York

M.A. Psychology

New York University

B.A. English and American Literature

Please click here to view the full profile.

This profile was created by Expertfile.