FUTURE-PROOF DIGI-TRANSFORM

The digital revolution continues unabated and will be even more disruptive as old business models are not only disrupted but get reinvented or scrapped. You cannot compete by simply upgrading technology. And the CIO or CDO cannot do this alone. The entire enterprise has to be re-envisioned and re-invented if it is to survive and prosper.

ECONOMIC "SUPER-BOOM" 2020-2030

Frank long ago identified a repetitive 9-year economic cycle in North America. He forecast the last 3 recessions [1991-2, 2000-1, 2009-10] in his 1989 book G-Forces ... along with the next minor slow-down, which he still says will occur in 2019, followed by another boom of unprecedented proportions.

- ï¼¼ 1. Short-Term Economic Outlook to 2020
- ï¼¼ 2. Next Boom Cycle to 2030: What will it be like?
- ï¼¼ 3. Best Business Opportunities: Where will they be?

FUTURE of CONSUMER SERVICE SECTORS

Every service sector is vulnerable to total digital and competitor disruption and revolution. All product and service offerings need to be transformed in their creation, marketing and delivery. Some services may be totally replaced by new concepts as the gig economy and digital partnerships emerge.

INNOVATION LEADERSHIP and CHANGE MANAGEMENT

Innovation and change must be constant and must relate to future market needs. The world operates in "beta" mode. Innovation and change also must be in "beta" mode, or it will not be "future-proof". Stay ahead of the curve: be your sector's innovation leader.

FUTURE-PROOF MARKETING

Marketing is being transformed by the digital revolution. Consumers worldwide continue to shift away from brick-n-mortar shops to online and mobile channels. They also demand a "wow" experience, forcing a total marketing re-think. The 4Ps must be revamped, as must every aspect of customer sales and satisfaction.
