

Franklin Acito

Professor of Marketing at Indiana University, Kelley School of Business

Bloomington, IN, US

Franklin Acito's research focuses on marketing strategy, research methods, and the application of research methods to management decisions.

Description

Frank Acito serves as Director of the Institute for Business Analytics in the Kelley School of Business at Indiana University where he is also Professor of Marketing and the Max Barney Distinguished Teaching Fellow. His teaching is focused on predictive analytics and data mining tools in courses being taught to our graduate students as well as corporate professionals.

His research interests are in marketing research methods and tools, the application of research methods to management decisions, and marketing strategy. His publications on these topics have appeared in the Journal of Marketing Research, the Journal of Marketing, the Journal of Consumer Research, Multivariate Behavioral Research, Decision Sciences, the Academy of Management Journal, Industrial Marketing Management, and other professional journals.

Frank has served as Associate Dean for Academics and also Associate Dean for Technology in the Kelley School. He also served as chair of the Marketing Department at the Kelley School for more than 11 years. During that time he established the Center for Education and Research in Retailing after obtaining a substantial grant from Sears, Roebuck and Company. He then served as chair of the Kelley School's Doctoral Programs for four years. He received the Distinguished Teaching Award from the Doctoral Student Association in 2002 and again in 2005. Frank developed and taught in executive programs at Eli Lilly and Company, IBM, Rolls-Royce Allison, 3M Corporation, and Ingersoll Rand. He has consulted with Chrysler Corporation, IBM, Eli Lilly, Kocolene Oil, and Walker Research.

Frank holds a B.E.E. in Electrical Engineering from Cornell University and MBA and Ph.D. degrees from the University at Buffalo.

Industry Expertise

Education/Learning, Talent Management, Market Research, Advertising/Marketing, Information Technology and Services

Topics

Market & Survey Research, Marketing Strategies, Survey Sampling, Information Technology, Marketing Research

Affiliations

Professor of Marketing, Co-Director Kelley Institute for Business Analytics, Max Barney Distinguished Teaching Fellow

Education

State University of New York, Buffalo
Ph.D. Business Administration

State University of New York, Buffalo
M.B.A. Business Administration

Cornell University
B.E.E. Electrical Engineering

Accomplishments

Max Barney Faculty Fellowship
Awarded by Indiana University.

Distinguished Teaching Award
Awarded by the Doctoral Student Association.

MBA Teaching Excellence Award
Awarded by the Kelley School of Business.

Please click here to view the full profile.

This profile was created by Expertfile.