The Social Shift - Social Media's impact on organizations

This upcoming event is hosted by the CIO Forum. Speaking to CIOs of Fortune 500 companies in New York City, Harpaul will discuss how social media is shifting the consumer world, but organizations have seen only the tip of the iceberg. Employees are flocking to social media to talk about your organization, while more and more employers continue to struggle with how they can use social media. Harpaul Sambhi analyzes how organizations are utilizing social media to empower employees, why social media will thump IT security, and showcase best practicing organizations to increase productivity. From policy writing, innovation, talent management, leadership development, engagement to communications, Harpaul analyses how social networks are currently, or will impact each function in the near future and how organizations are monetizing social media usage at the workplace, all from a Generational Y point of view.
