Biography

Katrice Svanda is a Director of Business Development for Digital Impact Agency, a Houston-based interactive digital media and inbound marketing agency. Her background includes over 13 years of experience in the technology industry from marketing emerging technologies to participating in several technology spin-offs. Katrice has created successful marketing campaigns for business-to-business, business-to-consumer, and business-to-government.

Her vast experience with Lynntech, Inc. has given her a completely unique perspective into the technology industry. Coming from a technology company herself, she has experienced technology commercialization, technology transfer and product development, and understands the challenges in marketing to investors and transitioning from the lab to marketplace.
