Owner/Principal at Leni Schwendinger Light Projects LTD

New York, NY, US

"Fun, moving, exciting! Is how I would describe Leni's Talk and LightWalk."

Biography

Leni Schwendinger

Lighting Urbanist

In a field where public lighting and illumination increasingly influence the global language of urban design and urban experience, Leni is considered visionary in her approach to the next generation of luminous environments and cityscapes.

With over 20 years of work as both lighting designer and public artist, she has refined her lighting philosophy and in doing so, has redefined the possibilities for light in the public realm.

She has been the recipient of numerous professional awards, including several 'Lumen' awards from the Illuminating Engineering Society; the Society for Environmental Graphic Design; and the NYFA Fellowship for emerging artists. Current projects include lighting the exterior of the Van Abbemuseum in Eindhoven; the Times Square Reconstruction Project; and a public lighting strategy for Dohaland, Heart of Doha. Leni has been featured in Architectural Digest, Metropolis; Dwell; and numerous other design publications.

Luminous Landscapes; an Artist's Approach to Design

A brief survey of creative lighting projects to broaden understanding of the use of lighting in public space: Light as communication, Light in relation to intimate and large-scale projects, Humanizing Brutalist forms with light, Immersive environments using light and Light as sculpture

Colored Light Lesson: Using colored light has become user-friendly and with the advent of LED, an easy application. The speaker proposes two approaches; the sublime and the carnivalesque. Explanation of color theory as it relates to colored light. Offers language to value use of colored light for environmental projects.

Case studies.

Immersive Color; Shades of Light

Leni Schwendinger's visual discussion includes a survey of international installations for which color, light and materials are integral to communicate concepts. Leni invites the audience to explore the startling differences between CMYK pigment color and hues of light, starting with the primaries; Red, Green and Blue. A shift in perspective is required for adaptation of color theory to the additive qualities of color mixing with light. Leni explains this design orientation through real-life examples. Journeying through colorful, creative projects as diverse in scale as bridges, gardens, and museum exhibitions; viewers will leave with memorable luminous visions.

Community Involvement: An Essential Factor For Innovative Public Lighting

Synopsis: Delve into the experiential factor of public realm lighting. Leni Schwendinger will share design charrette techniques developed to enable community members to focus on the after-dark experience of their districts and neighborhoods. Framing the creative use of light in a brainstorm setting educates the end-user and facilitates open-minds. Workshops translate into effective lighting master plan, lighting strategy and/or lighting guidelines. Additionally, Leni will discuss her insights into the social politics required to manage the multi-headed client and stakeholder group for public projects.

Brilliant Passionate Cities: The New Sustainable Night

As nighttime activities and flexible working hours increasingly redefine urban experience, greater emphasis is focused on illuminating the after-dark environment. Leni discusses the issues and commissions that enlarge the possibilities of architectural design, our cities' parks, plazas, waterfronts and streets through transformational public palettes-- exemplifying lighting as the essential element of our 24/7 world.

Testimonials

Alexis Nollet

Leni's NightSeeing in Frankfurt was a great event that showed people the city lights with a very artistic and detail oriented approach. Technilum team was delighted to help organizing this event and bringing it to the Luminale as well as following Leni's NightTalk & NightWalk with an amazing group of international people ! We received a lot of congratulations, people were super happy about the talk and the explanations about the lights and shadows in the city!

Tony Crinion

Leni's participation at The ARC Show within the IALD Conference brought a new and highly innovative element to the event.

Michael Levine

"I am using your Night City movie to inspire my Pace University Urban Planning class. The video sparks discussion, students' imaginations are stirred and ideas flow."

Donna Walcavage

"When you walk around with Leni, she shares a deep -- intense and vivid -- look at the City, a new awareness of the night landscape."

Lucia Cajaty - Rio de Janeiro

Night Seeing com Leni foi experiência extraordinária, mostrando iluminação-arte ; experiência única somente comparada ao luar beijando as ondas do mar. A luz provocante e provocada beija a noite e leva à excitação dos amantes de Frankfurt. É mais que belo os efeitos criados por Leni.

John Toffalo

The NightSeeing programme was a refreshing change from other lectures/workshops I have attended. Getting out into the urban environment and local community to see how light affects all aspects of our lives which are often taken for granted was surprisingly interesting and informative.

Damu Radheshwar

Light Walk with Leni made the obvious noteworthy. Now I see the shadows in a whole different light.
