Sample Talks

Getting to market in 60 days

How to name, articulate, package and launch a growth company in 60 days.

Marketing for PE Portfolio Companies

Marketing is often seen as a dirty word and a waste of money. Particularly for money people. It can be a smart and strategic investment that pays off with customer retention, employee alignment and--the best part--rapid valuation increases. See how marketing can be an asset on your next asset purchase or sale.

Becoming a New Brand

When you've been a brand--with standards and a culture--and something suddenly shifts your universe, it can be hard to become a new brand. You have to know what's changed, why you're changing, who you need to be, and how able your people are to live and breathe the new brand. It doesn't have to take forever, it doesn't have to cost a fortune, but it DOES take clarity, discipline and buy-in.

Planting Your Flag in a Chaotic Industry

Many companies are currently experiencing either lightning speed changes or glacial progress. The chaos of the "stop and start" or "try to restart and stop" is deflating efforts, egos, budgets and preventing progress. Break out of these cycles by confirming your position, agreeing to a plan of action and aggressively pursuing your customers and prospects whether the wind is at your back or in your face.

The Relativity of Risk

A discussion of how risk is inherent but also learned. Determining how to assess risk at your current phase of life/career and ensure you are doing all you can to elevate and advance yourself in the ways you want. Take the right risks for you--don't make moves based on someone else's idea of risk and what is appropriate.

Testimonials

Elizabeth Levy Ward

Moderator--In my 30 years of being in marketing, I have hired and observed dozens of moderators--really good moderators are very rare. The real artists know how to create a flow from one topic area to the next, spark lively exchanges among panelists and use just the right amount of airtime in just the right way. Moira is one of these rare artists. In the panels I've seen her moderate, she matches the intellectual caliber of even the most senior-level panelists and so can stay in front of any conversation and seamlessly guide it to tee up the next question or topic. She has a strong presence without ever competing with the panelists. It's a pleasure to watch her in action and I recommend her to anyone.

Elizabeth Levy Ward

Facilitator--Moira is a gifted facilitator who contributes to both the process and the content of a meeting or brainstorming session. She can simultaneously guide the discussion toward its end goals, capture and articulate the key ideas, and contribute to the thinking and quality of output. Recently Moira facilitated a group of 10 top marketing executives through a 90-minute brainstorming session for a thought leadership White Paper. She guided the group seamlessly from topic to topic, improvising the order to maintain discussion flow, and making sure that everyone had opportunities to contribute. Moira was immensely helpful in both designing the process and also helping to identify key conclusions from the session. Hire her for clarity.
