

Mylany David

Partner at Dentons Canada LLP

Montreal, QC, CA

One-to-watch leader in renewable energy & real estate law, with expertise in the hot topics of wind farm development & strategic financing.

Mylany David practises commercial law, more specifically in the areas of real estate transactions and commercial acquisitions as well as leasing, financing and project development. She also specializes in energy law and has been involved in the development, the construction and the financing of several wind farms in Québec and elsewhere in Canada.

In recent years, Mylany has counselled clients on a variety of transactions, including major acquisitions. She has played an active role in several strategic decisions and has acquired broad expertise in energy and real estate law.

Mylany acts for and advises developers and owners in connection with numerous projects, land assembly, obtaining various permits in negotiating agreements with the stakeholders, financing and resale for commercial purposes. She also represents institutional lenders in real estate financings. Mylany regularly advises national and Québec companies on the negotiation of commercial leases, acting for both landlords and tenants. She has also negotiated certain strategic agreements in the framework of the Autoroute 30 public-private partnership.

In the renewable energy sector, Mylany has acted on various wind farm projects totalling close to 1000 MW. She has proposed innovative solutions to various real estate problems, such as the registration of the rights of project developers and lenders. She is also involved in a number of construction projects and public-private partnership projects.

Mylany has more than 10 years of experience in major national law firms. She joined Dentons Canada LLP in January 2007 and became a partner in 2010.
