

Nicolas Rosenthal

Professor of History at Loyola Marymount University

Los Angeles, CA, US

Bellarmino College of Liberal Arts

Biography

Nicolas G. Rosenthal is Professor of History, specializing in Indigenous, American West, and 20th Century United States history, whose research examines the intersection of American Indian and modern American culture and society. In 2012 he published Reimagining Indian Country: Native American Migration and Identity in Twentieth-Century Los Angeles (University of North Carolina Press), which traces the migration of American Indians to cities, the formation of urban American Indian communities, and the shifting relations between cities and reservations throughout the United States. His current project explores the experiences of Indigenous painters and how they sought to influence popular ideas about Native American history and culture while making a living in the broader art world. Dr. Rosenthal received his B.A. and M.A. from the University of Oregon and earned a Ph.D. from the University of California, Los Angeles. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Please see his website for more information: <https://sites.google.com/site/nicolasgroenthal/>

Industry Expertise

Research, Education/Learning

Areas of Expertise

History, History of the American West, American History, Indian History, Environmental History, 20th Century U.S. History

Education

University of California at Los Angeles

Ph.D. Graduate Studies

University of Oregon

M.A. Graduate Studies

University of Oregon

B.A. Undergraduate Studies

Please click here to view the full profile.

This profile was created by Expertfile.