Rachid Sefrioui is the Managing Director of Finaventures, a venture capital firm he founded in 1999. In the last 20 years, he has backed over 30 startups and growth companies that collectively grew sales to over $450 million, among which he was the Founding CEO of an 18-company integration to create a Regional Technology leader.

He's earned his stripes early in his career by working for McKinsey & Co and for financial houses such as Bowco Investment and Wafatrust Credit Agricole Indosuez. He earned a degree in management & operations research from Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio.

Accomplishments

White-water rafting as a Team Building exercise

Led a team of 32 executives from my 18 portfolio companies on a 3-day whitewater rafting trip to build team cohesiveness, trust, determination and leadership.

An incredible learning experience where being between life and death at any turn down the river brought out people's instincts and recognition.
