Sample Talks

The realtime digital life of cities turns into usable knowledge

How has our perception of the spaces around us transformed during the last few years.

The wide and ubiquitous availability of digital technologies and networks radicalizes our perception of space, transforming reality into a read/write environment which can host infinite number of informations and expressions.

Open Data, Big Data, realtime information harvesting from social networks, privacy, transparency, ubiquitous technologies, citizen science.

Accomplishments

TED Fellowship

Salvatore Iaconesi of AOS has been nominated TED Fellow for 2012 and, for this, will be presenting at TED Global 2012 in Edinburgh from June 25-29 2012.

At Art is Open Source we focus on the transformations which have been brought on to human beings by the wide and ubiquitous availability of digital technologies and networks.

This, we feel, is the great opportunity of our times: transform the sensibilities, creativities, inventions, insights, knowledge, traditions of individuals into usable, p
