

Sarah A. Treul, Ph.D.

Bowman and Gordon Gray Term Professor, Department of Political Science, College of Arts and Sciences at UNC-Chapel Hill

Chapel Hill, NC, US

Sarah Treul specializes in American political institutions, with an emphasis on the U.S. Congress and courts.

Sarah Treul is Bowman and Gordon Gray Term Professor of political science in UNC's College of Arts and Sciences. She specializes in American political institutions, with an emphasis on the U.S. Congress and courts. She earned her B.A. in Political Science and Psychology from Wellesley College and her M.A and Ph.D. (both in Political Science) from the University of Minnesota. Her research interests include the voting behavior of U.S. senators, bicameralism, and state delegations in Congress. She is currently working on a project analyzing how a decline in state economic interests has contributed to polarization in Congress.

American Political Institutions, U.S. Congress, Courts, Voting behavior of U.S. senators, Bicameralism, State delegations in Congress

Member American Political Science Association, Member Midwest Political Science Association

"Consider This ... The 2016 Elections"

Sponsored by the UNC General Alumni Association

University of Minnesota

Ph.D. Political Science and Government

University of Minnesota

M.A. Political Science

Wellesley College

B.A. Political Science and Psychology

Bowman and Gordon Gray Term Professorship

The highest teaching honor in the College of Arts and Sciences (2019-2024)

Honors Carolina's Manekin Family Teaching Award

2018

Tanner Award for Excellence in Undergraduate Teaching

2014

Please click here to view the full profile.

This profile was created by Expertfile.