Stephen Collins, Ph.D.
Professor of Political Science at Kennesaw State University
Kennesaw, GA, US

Stephen Collins researches American foreign policy, international political economy and security studies.

Biography

Stephen Collins is an associate professor of Political Science and International Affairs at Kennesaw State University. He earned his Ph.D. in Political Science from Johns Hopkins University in 2004. Collins teaches a variety of courses on international affairs and American government, including Introduction to International Politics (POLS 2250), American Foreign Policy (POLS 3350), The Politics of International Economic Relations (POLS 4438), American Government in a Global Perspective (POLS 1101), Comparative Politics (POLS 2240), World Politics and Governance (IPM 7720), and International Political Economy (IPM 7745). The general focus of his research is in the areas of American foreign policy, international political economy, and security studies, with an emphasis on the practice of economic statecraft in the areas of democratization, terrorism, conflict management, and nuclear proliferation.

Industry Expertise

Alternative Dispute Resolution, Education/Learning, Government Administration, Government Relations, Legislative Office, Public Policy, International Affairs

Areas of Expertise

Economic Statecraft, Foreign Aid, Development, Nuclear Proliferation, Terrorism, Conflict Resolution, Democratization, American Foreign Policy, International Political Economy, Conflict Management

Affiliations

Ambassadors for Change

Education

Johns Hopkins University
Ph.D. Political Science

Accomplishments

Faculty Scholarship Awarded
College of Humanities and Social Sciences/Burruss Institute 2009-2010 Faculty Scholarship award.
This profile was created by Expertfile.