Customer Experience in the Digital Era, & Women in the Workplace // L'expérience client, service à la clientèle, & Femmes au travail

Biography

Best-selling author, customer experience consultant, and international speaker, Tema (rhymes with Emma) Frank released her second book, PeopleShock: The Path to Profits When Customers Rule, in 2016 and it quickly became an Amazon best-seller.

Her first book, Canada's Best Employers for Women: A guide for job hunters, employees and employers, was a business and careers best-seller when it was released two decades ago, and an update is in progress.

Tema has done many media appearances in English et en français, including on Canada AM, CBC National News, Radio Canada, and many local radio and television programs. She has also been interviewed recently on many podcasts. (Visit <http://frankonlinemarketing.com/peopleshock-book/interviews-tema-frank/> to hear them.)

A digital marketing pioneer, in 2001 she founded Web Mystery Shoppers International Inc., the world's first company to test omnichannel customer service: web, phone, chat, email and in-store.

Using social media techniques before social media existed, she built a database of 75,000 "mystery shoppers" worldwide.

Clients have included the Royal Bank of Canada, Bank of America, Expedia, several government departments, and other organizations large and small.

Her industry-leading research has been featured in the Wall Street Journal, the Globe & Mail and many other publications. Tema's weekly Frank Reactions podcast on customer experience can be found on iTunes or at <http://frankreactions.com/show>.

She has also taught digital marketing strategy at universities in Canada and France. Elle a donné des cours en français et en anglais.
