Women in Technology: Breaking New Ground

The technology space has long been a "boy's club," but in the last decade the industry has seen a surge of women entrepreneurs that are breaking new ground. This presentation will address the challenges and successes of building a technology business. Topics will include scaling and selling a company, finding investors vs bootstrapping, opportunities in mobile, effective management styles, cultivating leadership skills, and what women can expect as the technology industry continues to evolve.

Social Shopping: Friends Don't Let Friends Buy Alone

The marketing landscape has changed for ecommerce. Customer acquisition costs are rising. There are lower barriers to entry, which mean more competition. And, it is easy for even the most loyal customers to defect to competitors. With these trends, it is easy for an ecommerce site to get concerned. This presentation will explain the benefits of social commerce and provide concrete solutions that any ecommerce site can implement in order to grow customer referrals.

Entrepreneurship: Dreaming Big and Innovating for the Future

In popular imagination, entrepreneurs are risk-loving dreamers who are born, and not made. In reality, entrepreneurs are creative problem solvers who apply leadership and persistence to build innovative solutions to un-met market opportunities. What are the challenges and opportunities of pursuing an entrepreneurial career path? What skills can you develop and what will you learn on the job — whether you want to or not? This presentation will focus on innovation & leadership in the tech sector.
